The Tyler Wentworth Story

From an early age, Tyler Wentworth was destined to be a high flyer in the world of high fashion.

During the 1950's, Tyler's great-aunt, Regina Wentworth, established the House of Wentworth in New York City and created innovative collections that set the standard for 7th Avenue fashion design. Years later, Tyler, who had always loved the glamour and excitement of her great-aunt's business, joined the prestigious house's design staff. She proved to be exceptionally talented, and it was not long until she was promoted to Regina's first assistant.

With the House of Wentworth's reputation firmly established, Regina began to consider passing the reins to a new talent. Spurring her on was her relationship with Carlos, a young artist who had instantly fallen in love with the chic, elegant, older designer. Soon Regina made her decision to move with Carlos to the south of France, and she turned the company over to Tyler. Although young for the job, Tyler quickly showed that she was equal to her new responsibilities. With only a few short seasons of fashion experience, she confidently assumed leadership of the House of Wentworth and received rave reviews for her first collection.

Robert Tonner Doll Company is pleased to present the Tyler Wentworth collection. Tyler is a 16-inch, vinyl/hard plastic doll with rooted hair and an extensive, stylish wardrobe.

Fragrance Launch - Mixing business and pleasure, Tyler looks every bit the entrepreneur in her chic black-and-white boundstooth suit. Tyler selected this lovely Italian wool because of the interesting shot of gold that runs through the fabric. She wears the fitted double-breasted suit jacket, which has a velvet portrait collar and matching cuffs, over a slim, tailored skirt. She arrives at the event in a black wool hat that matches her dark stockings and black pumps. And of course she has her own bottle of Wentworth #1 perfume.

 Wake Up Call - On those hectic mornings before work, Tyler throws her silk charmeuse robe over her two-piece tailored matching pajamas for a few minutes of respite with a cup of coffee, a bagel, and the current copy of Fashion Design Weekly.

Dress Form #99890

Tyler designs by sketching and draping. When inspired by luxurious fabric, she often goes directly to her muslin covered dress form to pin and shape the cloth into the desired garment. Tyler's dress form is scaled exactly to her proportions so that it can be used for either display or the fitting of original designs. The body of this dress form is soft foam covered in tightly stretched muslin with a "gold" stand.
