BELIEVE IN THE POWER OF PLAY®

Known for her impeccable sense of style and glamour, Regina Wentworth™ embodied the lifestyle of Manhattan in haute couture. Launching the House of Wentworth™ immediately took the fashion industry by storm with Regina's extravagant use of luxurious fabrics and embellishments. She succeeded where others failed, and she created a sense of luxe that is now synonymous with her name. However, after many years catering to the wealthy, word on 7th Avenue had it that Regina's clients began to shift with fashion to newer designers who toyed with minimalist designs. Regina felt abandoned by the fashion industry and she made plans to retire in the south of France with young artist, Carlos. However, as the years went by, Regina followed her niece, Tyler Wentworth®, and her multiple successes with the House of Wentworth™. Before long, Regina yearned to design once more - abandoning her cozy retirement and Carlos, Regina returned to Manhattan...and to fashion! Her newest collection was an instant hit with fashionistas wanting a sense of luxury in their attire and tiring of the 'off-the-rack' look. Regina supplied their demands and much, much more. But her hurried return to the House of Wentworth™ created strain in Tyler's world. Soon, there would be an embroiled battle over the trademark name of Wentworth and its future as a couture house. Regina Wentworth™, tiring of the impact on her family, conceded and launched The Regina Collection™. With her, she secured two of Tyler's favorite models from Chase Modeling, Jac and Angelina, to launch the new look for Regina's long-awaited return to fashion.

Jeremy VOSS™

knew fashion would consume his world. Well into his curricula at design school, Jeremy thought the other students tasteless and full of cliché concepts - except one...Tyler Wentworth®. To Voss, she was a strong talent, and the two soon became the best of friends. After graduation, Jeremy worked for a number of designers on Seventh Avenue until fate smiled on him - Tyler introduced him to her aunt, Regina Wentworth™, and he dazzled her with his wit and charm. She contacted him shortly afterward and asked him to come to work for her at the House of Wentworth™. It didn't take him long to move up the ladder to the position of first assistant. Tyler joined him at Wentworth when she graduated; he took the young designer under his wing. Jeremy was a star on Fashion Avenue; but that shimmer would soon begin to fade as endless squabbles with Regina would begin to take their toll. The word on the street is that Jeremy left Wentworth to start his own line. In truth, he left because when Regina was leaving for her retirement, she appointed Tyler, not Jeremy, as her successor. Rumor has it that a pretty nasty scene between Jeremy and Regina took place - and they both said things that, at more reflective moments, they regretted. However, there was no turning back. Jeremy's new plans required significant investment; he was willing to do anything to achieve his goals. Whispers can still be heard about his connection with a very unscrupulous businessman who brought the financial backing to VOSS INTL. Jeremy now considers anyone who is a friend of Tyler to be his enemy. Tyler's best friend, Sydney Chase™, was shocked when Voss took one of her top models, Kit, and signed her to an exclusive in-house contract. Even more shocked was Sydney's brother, Simon, who was married to Kit...was...

Tyler Wentworth® has always loved beautiful, elegant clothing. From an early age, she knew she was destined to set trends and create unforgettable fashions. She credits much of her rise on Seventh Avenue to her Aunt Regina and those in her life who have helped to shape her skills and nurture her talents to become one of the industry's most talked-about and admired designers. A nine-time winner of Fashion Design Weekly's top design awards, Tyler Wentworth® has embossed her name on the very essence of high style. Upon assuming the head of the House of Wentworth™ from her Aunt Regina, Tyler immediately assessed the fashion house's strengths, and she quickly swung into action. Now one of the world's top fashion sources, Wentworth pulls out all the stops each time a new collection is presented. With her best friend and ally, Sydney Chase™, and The Chase Modeling Agency™ at her side, Tyler exceeds the norm in the industry, and she continues to be a Fashion Avenue darling. With new challenges in her world, including the addition of a worthy rival at VOSS INTL, and her returning Aunt Regina, Tyler Wentworth® certainly has her portfolio full! However, her creative maturity speaks strongly amongst her peers, and her confidence has never been stronger.

The story of Analissa and Gianetto™ began in the wondrous workshop of the master puppet-maker, Donato Gianelli. One winter, the Grand Duke was to marry his beloved, Catherina. The whole town was joyously preparing gifts for the royal couple, and Donato wanted his gift to be the most beautiful - so he decided to make a pair of marionettes. The dolls were to be his finest work, and after many weeks of carving heads, hands and feet from the strongest wood as well as sewing costumes from the finest fabrics, the pair was ready to have their strings attached. It was just about midnight when Donato finished attaching the strings and handles; and not wanting to tangle the two marionettes together, he placed Analissa and Gianetto™ down on his worktable alongside one another until the next morning. That night while Donato slept, a cold, enchanted wind blew through a window that he had mistakenly left open, leaving everything covered in a frost that sparkled like crushed diamonds. In the morning, the master woke and went into his workshop to admire his wonderful new creations; but he could not believe his eyes at what he saw! On the table were Analissa and Gianetto™ attached to a single set of strings that were connected to only one handle. It was too late to do anything to fix them, so he had no choice but to give them as they were. At the wedding banquet, Donato presented Analissa and Gianetto™ to the newly married couple. Before he could explain his story, the Grand Duchess rose from her chair and exclaimed, "No one could, or will ever give us a more perfect gift! To have both marionettes strung together serves as a symbol of our love as one." Her voice made the marionettes very happy as they well knew they would never be separated again. And of course, they all lived happily ever after...
